

6. A transmission method for a telecommunications system comprising at least a base station and a plurality of secondary stations as claimed in claim 1, including circuits for relaying information, characterized in that, for ensuring a transmission, it comprises a step according to which the secondary stations carry out space-diversity transmission and also space-diversity reception.

10023120 122101